“Barnstorming Book Tour” To Launch August 1

As the sun rises above the Catalina Mountains on August 1, Anne Hopkins will climb into the cockpit of her 1929-design open cockpit biplane and head out from the skies of Tucson, Arizona, for a two-month journey around her country. Stopping at dozens of small airports, she will introduce journalists to the freedom and joy of flight as they write or tape a feature story about her trip, her book Sticks & Wires & Cloth, her Great Lakes biplane, and the local airport.

A few additional stops for interviews with Anne may still be scheduled. Press kits with the current airport tour schedule are available at <http://www.tebooks.com/pressreleases.html>. Do not miss this opportunity to enhance your coverage of the centennial of flight.
